

Calista Anderson
6th Grade, Clay Middle School

Our Heroes

On November 11 we celebrate a special group of men and women who all have one thing in common. That one thing is they have helped protect our country's freedom by serving in the armed forces. These people deserve our gratitude and respect because they have done something that takes an immense amount of loyalty, courage and dedication to the American way. These people are veterans. Veterans are people who have served in the armed forces whether in peacetime or in war. We celebrate our veterans because they are the living embodiment of the American way. They believe in freedom and will go to great lengths to protect America's freedom.

We respect these people because they portray the best qualities of human life like loyalty, courage, dedication, patience and motivation. These people are ordinary people who have made themselves extraordinary. They have chosen to fight for a cause they believe in. And they choose to defend our freedom. They protect our country, our freedom and our people. They may seem ordinary at first glance but look a little deeper and you will find that these people are heroes. The road to freedom is not always an easy one but these brave men and women choose to walk it anyway. It may not be easy but these men and women kept on fighting for what they believed in. This country is very lucky to have so many men and women who are not afraid to fight for what they believe in. They will not go unnoticed and they will live on in the hearts of all those who's freedom they have defended. I would like to take this chance to personally say thank you. Thank you for serving our country and protecting our freedom. May you live on in the hearts of the American people.