

Jordan Seigel
7th Grade, Clay Middle School

Heroes Among Us

Veterans. We think of them as brave men and women who have fought for our country. This is a true statement. However, it does not truly convey the actual selflessness and genuine compassion of our country's veterans. The veterans of America are truly the most exceptional people living in our country. Without all our veterans, our country would not be how it is today. Veterans are the most selfless, honorable and amazing people we have in America today.

Veterans are a selfless group of people who gave up everything they had to become members of the Armed Forces. They decided that they would fight for others to keep their freedom and live a happy life, even if that means the risk of losing their own. They are the most influential people in America. They knew that they would face the real horrors of war and that their lives would never be the same after serving, but that was the choice they made to ensure that our freedoms in America would never be stripped away. They are the reason that no other military in the world will ever be stronger than ours. Our veteran's service has kept our flag standing for over 240 years now.

We can also not forget those who have lost their lives fighting for our country. They should be honored in death and know that they have died while fighting for our freedom. These individuals, along with our still standing veterans, should be recognized as the most honorable, bravest, and selfless people that the world has ever seen. We are eternally indebted to the service of these men and women. For everything you have given us, I want to say thank you. Thank you for everything you have done for us all.

You will be remembered forever as a brave hero of the United States of America.